

Reading Tips

---

As parents, you are the most influential teacher to aid your child's development.

Here are 10 tips to help your child learn to read.

- Choose a quiet time

Set aside a quiet time to listen to your child read. Ten to fifteen minutes is usually enough

- Make reading enjoyable

It is important that your child enjoys reading. Try not to pressurise him or her if they are reluctant. If they lose interest then do something else.

- Maintain the flow

Occasionally, your child will mispronounce a word. Do not interrupt immediately, instead, allow opportunity for self-correction. It is better to tell a child some unknown words to maintain the flow rather than insisting on trying to build them all up from sounds of the letters. If your child does try to 'sound out' words, encourage the use of letter sounds rather than the letter names.

- Be positive

If your child says something nearly right to start with that is fine. Don't say 'No. That's wrong,' but 'Let's read it together' and point to the words as you say them. Boost your child's confidence with constant praise for even the smallest achievement.

- Success is the key

Parents anxious for a child to progress can mistakenly give a child a book that is too difficult. This can have the opposite effect to the one they are wanting. Remember 'Nothing succeeds like success'. Until your child has built up his or her confidence, it is better to keep to easier books. Struggling with a book with many unknown words is pointless. Flow is lost, text cannot be understood and children can easily become reluctant readers.

- Visit the Library

Encourage your child to use the public library regularly.

- Regular practice

Try to read with your child on most school days. 'Little and often' is best. Teachers have limited time to help your child with reading.

- Communicate

Your child will most likely have a reading diary from school. Try to communicate regularly with positive comments and any concerns. Your child will then know that you are interested in their progress and that you value reading.

- Talk about the books

There is more to being a good reader than just being able to read the words accurately. Just as important is being able to understand what has been read. Always talk to your child about the book; about the pictures, the characters, how they think the story will end, their favourite part. You will then be able to see how well they have understood and you will help them to develop good comprehension skills.

- Variety is important

Remember children need to experience a variety of reading materials eg. picture books, hard backs, comics, magazines, poems, and information books.
